5.0 Correspondence: While there was no correspondence, Gene raised the compelling need and desire to discuss the recent killings of George Floyd and others, Black Lives Matter protests, racism, and police brutality and reform, as it relates to our organization and the need for us, as educators, to state our position on these significant issues. Our members freely and respectfully raised a variety of cogent points and perspectives. They included; abhorrence of police brutality of any kind, but especially based on race, education equality and funding, equal justice, white privilege, distinction between the BLM organization and the BLM protestors, social inequality and equal access for all, education and training for teachers and administrators, combining school districts to remedy funding inequities, programs that teach tolerance and respect, restructuring and reforming police departments as opposed to “defunding”, expressing support for dedicated police officers while addressing “bad apples”, and getting unions to expel racist officers while maintaining due process for all. Corine will use the July QQ to get members perspectives and suggestions for solutions. We also discussed recruiting minority members to provide a more diverse Executive Board which we all desire. Gene asked all board members to email their thoughts and perspectives to him so he can write a position paper for the organization. The Fall newsletter will include a review of books related to these issues along with an appeal to recruit members of color and other ethnicities.
